Dedication

Dr. Abel B. Sykes, Jr.

This issue is dedicated to Dr. Abel Baxton Sykes, Jr., a founding member of the Presidents' Round Table, born on June 1, 1934, in Kansas City, Kansas, and passed away on December 19, 2012. Dr. Sykes obtained his bachelor's and master's degrees in history and government from the University of Missouri at Kansas City. He later received his doctoral degree in education from the University of California at Los Angeles and a Fulbright scholarship in business from Harvard University.

Dr. Abel B. Sykes, Jr.

Dr. Sykes served nearly two decades as president for Compton College (CA). After five years as president of King's River College (currently Reedley College in California), he became president of Lansing Community College (MI). Dr. Sykes is memorialized at Compton College and Lansing Community College with the naming of buildings in his honor: the early childhood development building at Compton and the technology building at Lansing. Dr. Sykes served in a variety of positions at the local, state and national levels during his tenure, including chair of the board of the American Association of Community Colleges from 1976-77. He was committed to the mission of community colleges and made an impact on the lives of thousands of students and numerous employees for whom he served as an able mentor.

Dr. Sykes and his wife, Sylvia, hosted in their home such notables as the Ambassador to the United Nations Andrew Young, United States Treasurer Azie Taylor Morton, Dick Gregory, Maya Angelou, cartoonist Bill Hanna, and many others. Always interested in aviation, Dr. Sykes became a pilot and flew his own Cessna airplane up and down the California coast. He took sailing lessons and sailed Lake Muskegon. He always enjoyed a good game of golf and loved jazz, exotic food – he had memorable culinary skills – and even made his own wine for many years. Words cannot capture and convey the depth, breadth, and impact of Abel Baxton Sykes, Jr. upon others in this life.

A Message from the Convener

Dear Colleagues,

Greetings to all of you on behalf of the executive committee of the Presidents' Round Table (PRT). The spring newsletter provides an opportunity to acknowledge the myriad occurrences, developments and expectations of the first quarter of 2013. After reflecting on the first 120 days of 2013, I couldn't help but ponder the age old question of where are we heading? The PRT as a membership organization is unique in its composition of executive leaders committed to the support and advancement of community college leaders of color. This commitment often requires multiple sacrifices beyond and above those made by our contemporaries. Yet, over the last decade, we've had a leveling off, and even experienced some declines, in the number of leaders of color in the community college sector.

*Dr. Andrew C. Jones
PRT Convener*

Given the fact that a primary responsibility and priority of the PRT is to help prepare future leaders for the opportunities and vagaries that lie before them, the Thomas Lakin Institute for Mentored Leadership takes on even greater significance as a vehicle for progressive and focused servant leadership. At the base of this desire to lead is the overarching commitment to student success and completion, a difficult goal when the pipeline is at best unpredictable and often severed. Many have argued that the role of the community college leader is to serve community college students. I would argue that it is no longer that simple of a proposition. A number of states, and most recently the federal Department of Education, are requiring the establishment of common core curricula and, in some cases, alignment of high school and college curriculum. The ability to not only interact, but to collaborate with independent school districts, non-governmental bodies, and state and national governmental agencies will be crucial as we morph toward more regulated/legislated cooperative agreements. Where are we going? Obviously, we're headed into a new world of complicated and heavily regulated relationships with both traditional and non-traditional partners. The power of both the formal and informal resources of the PRT can weigh heavily on the success or failure of individuals as we sprint into the challenges of the 21st century. I beseech you to consider, and quickly avail yourself of, the enormous array of experience, expertise and intellect found in the Presidents' Round Table. Opportunities for students, mid-level professional and executive-level aspirants can be achieved through the vehicles of the Men of Color, Student Leadership Institute, The Carolyn Grubbs Williams Mid-Level Institute, and the Thomas Lakin Institute for Mentored Leadership programs. Each of these programs will be available during the fall institutes held the week of October 13-20 at the Community College of Allegheny College, Pittsburg, PA. Further institute information is provided within this newsletter.

PRT Holds Spring Meeting and Dinner

The PRT held its annual spring business meeting and dinner during the annual convention of the American Association of Community Colleges in San Francisco. The business meeting covered several items, including a report by Dr. Dawn Person, CSU Fullerton, on survey results of participants in the Men of Color Institute held in October and plans for the 30th anniversary celebration of the PRT.

PRT convener, Dr. Andrew Jones, poses with dinner sponsors Anton Traub, Account Executive, and Pamela Wallace, Business Development Manager, Honeywell Energy & Environmental Solutions.

Approximately 50 members attended the breakfast and dinner events.

Acting Secretary of Labor Visits Contra Costa College

Dr. Denise Noldon, president of Contra Costa College (CCC), welcomed Acting Secretary of Labor Seth D. Harris to CCC in Richmond, California, on Friday, April 19, 2013, to tour a warehouse training facility operated by three partners – Contra Costa College, the Richmond Workforce Investment Board, and the San Pablo Economic Development Corporation.

The visit highlighted recent investments that have strengthened local partnerships between community colleges and employers. Acting Secretary Harris was joined by Under Secretary of Education Martha J. Kanter and Congressman George Miller on the visit. Harris also announced the new Department of Labor grant funding to train workers for in-demand and high-growth occupations.

“The Warehouse and Logistics training program is an example of accelerated and industry-focused training that is becoming a more central part of the work for community colleges,” said CCC President Dr. Denise Noldon. CCC is one of ten community colleges that formed a consortium to implement the “Design-It Build-It Ship-It” initiative that received $15 million through the Labor Department’s Trade Adjustment Assistance Community College and Career Training grant program.

On hand to highlight the Department of Labor’s investments in innovative training partnerships were (left to right): Warehousing Program Instructor Bill Gravelle; CCC President Denise Noldon; Bob Rivera, Contra Costa County Workforce Development Board; Undersecretary of Education Martha Kantor; Acting Secretary of Labor Seth Harris; Warehousing Program Coordinator Dona DeRusso; European Sleep Works Factory Manager Elizabeth Hymans; 11th District Congressman George Miller; Warehousing Program graduate and European Sleep Works employee George Lopez.

Dr. Jerry Sue Thornton

PRT Members Recognized in Top 25 Women in Higher Education

In its Women's History Month issue, Diverse Magazine recognized the top 25 women in higher education for their significant contributions in higher education from administration, science, nonprofit organizations or sports. Among this year's honorees were Drs. Helen Benjamin, chancellor of the Contra Costa Community College District in California; Alvetta Peterman Thomas, president of Atlanta Technical College in Georgia, and Jerry Sue Thornton, president of Cuyahoga Community College in Ohio.

Glasper Appointed to Homeland Security Advisory Council

U.S. Department of Homeland Security (DHS) Secretary Janet Napolitano has appointed Dr. Rufus Glasper, chancellor of Maricopa Community Colleges, to the Homeland Security Academic Advisory Council (HSAAC). The new council, comprised of prominent university presidents and academic leaders, is charged with advising the Secretary and senior leadership at the Department on several key issues.

Dr. Rufus Glasper

"Chancellor Glasper's extensive experience and expertise will make him a valuable asset to the Council," said Secretary Napolitano. "I look forward to working with him on these critical issues."

The new council underscores the Department's commitment to working with the academic community. In this noteworthy role, Dr. Glasper will provide advice and recommendations on issues related to student and recent graduate recruitment; international students; academic research; campus and community resiliency, security and preparedness; and faculty exchanges.

Dr. Glasper was appointed chancellor of Maricopa Community Colleges in September 2003. Earlier, he served as executive vice chancellor for human resources and administration. Before coming to Maricopa, he served as director of financial planning and budgeting for the Chicago Public Schools. Dr. Glasper holds a bachelor's degree in business administration from Luther College, a master's degree in school business administration from Northern Illinois University, and a doctoral degree in higher education finance from the University of Arizona.

Hillsborough Community College President Atwater Elected to Chair National Board of Directors

Hillsborough Community College President Ken Atwater has been selected as the chair-elect for the Board of Directors of the American Association of Community Colleges (AACC). He begins his term as chair on July 1, 2013, after his term as an AACC Board of Directors member expires on June 30, 2013. AACC represents nearly 1,200 two-year, associate degree-granting institutions and more than 13 million students, as well as a growing number of international members. The AACC Board is the 32-member governing body charged with acting on behalf of the institutional members to create a strategic vision for AACC.

Dr. Kenneth Atwater

Dr. Atwater previously served as president for South Mountain Community College and as vice president for Kellogg Community College, Howard Community College, and Midlands Technical College. Dr. Atwater earned his bachelor's and master's degrees at Murray State University and his doctoral degree at Southern Illinois University.

Dukes Inducted into Maryland Women's Hall of Fame

Dr. Charlene M. Dukes

Recognized for her unique and lasting contributions to the state, Prince George's Community College President Charlene M. Dukes has been inducted into the Maryland Women's Hall of Fame. Established in 1985, the Maryland Women's Hall of Fame provides visible models of achievement for tomorrow's female leaders.

Dr. Dukes became president of Prince George's Community College in 2007. Prior to her appointment, she worked for 12 years as vice president for student services at the college. Since July 2012, Dr. Dukes has served as president of the Maryland State Board of Education, and for the past year she has been a member of the Association of American Colleges and Universities (AAC&U) board of directors. In October 2011, Dr. Dukes was named by Washingtonian magazine as one of "The 100 Most Powerful Women." She holds an undergraduate degree in English education from Indiana University of Pennsylvania and earned her master's and doctoral degrees in administrative and policy studies from the University of Pittsburgh.

Seabrooks Selected for Diversity Award

The Ace Awards are one of several programs and partnerships that the Kansas City Chamber (KS) offers to embrace and recognize diversity and inclusion measures. This year's Ace Award recipients represent culturally diverse, mid- to senior-level managers, who are recognized by their colleagues for outstanding achievement in their respective industries, inspiring and mentoring others, and making exceptional contributions to the success of their employers.

Dr. Joseph Seabrooks

Among the 2013 recipients is Dr. Joseph Seabrooks, president of Metropolitan Community College-Penn Valley. Dr. Seabrooks led efforts to consolidate enrollment management functions and the creation of a dual diploma program for high school students. He also provided the vision that led to the design and development of the Malcolm T. Wilson Enrollment Center and was recognized for maximizing student resources, taking risks, creating opportunities, and building and sustaining an inclusive culture for Kansas City's future workforce.

Cedar Valley Community College's Small Business Development Center (SBDC) Selected as the 2013 SBDC of the Year

Cedar Valley College's SBDC at Cedar Hill was selected as the 2013 SBDC of the Year by the U.S. Small Business Administration (SBA) Dallas/Fort Worth District. This is the first time in the Best Southwest SBDC's 21-year history for the Cedar Valley College Center at Cedar Hill to have received this prestigious recognition. The SBDC center was created in 1992 for the purpose of providing management counseling to area residents. Dr Jennifer Wimbish serves as president of Cedar Valley College.

Patient Protection and Affordable Care Act

Are you prepared for the changes embodied in the Obama Administration's Patient Protection and Affordable Care Act which takes effect in January 2014? That's right, exactly in the middle of an academic year. Employees of large entities who work 30 hours or more a week must receive health benefits from their employers. Of particular note are adjunct faculty members, critical hourly employees and even some categories of independent contractors who meet certain criteria. You may want to huddle your human resources, payroll, internal auditors and finance team to determine your "reasonable method for crediting hours of service" as defined by the IRS.

Chance Meeting

In between their sessions at the Marriott Wardman Park hotel for the AACCC board of directors meeting, PRT members Drs. Cnage, Dorsey, Williams, and Dukes pose with former Secretary of State, General Colin Powell. General Powell happened to be featured at a book reading/signing in the same hotel.

Retirements

Jones Set to Retire from Three Rivers Community College (CT)

Dr. Grace Jones

On June 30, 2013, Three Rivers Community College President Grace Jones will retire after serving for 12 years. Dr. Jones came to Three Rivers in 2001 after spending five years as president of the College of Eastern Utah. In 2003, Jones saw Three Rivers through a $65 million consolidation of its New London campus and played an active role in the development of a new, state-sponsored magnet high school which she said then was one of the high points of her administration.

Over the years, Jones has won numerous civic awards, ranging from the Chamber of Commerce of Eastern Connecticut's Citizen of the Year last May and Woman of the Year by the Business and Professional Women's Organization to "Altruist of the Year" from the Southeastern Council on Alcoholism and Drug Dependence.

Dr. Jones earned her bachelor's degree from Washburn University, her master's degree from George Williams College, and her doctoral degree from Union Institute.

Pulliams Retires from Portland Community College (OR)

Dr. Preston Pulliams

Dr. Preston Pulliams, who has led Portland Community College (PCC) through historic surges in enrollment, announced he will retire from the president's post in July of 2013. Dr. Pulliams has led the state's largest community college nearly eight years, since May of 2004. Under his leadership, the college's enrollment grew more than 40 percent and scholarship awards to students tripled. Also a member of the State Board of Higher Education, Dr. Pulliams has helped foster partnerships between PCC and the City of Portland and has helped Portland Public Schools redesign Jefferson High School.

Before coming to Portland, Dr. Pulliams served as vice chancellor for community colleges for the State University of New York, president of Orange County Community College in Middletown, N.Y.; and president of Highland Lakes Campus of the Oakland Community College District in Michigan.

Dr. Pulliams earned his associate degree at Muskegon Community College, his bachelor's degree at Michigan State University, his master's degree at Western Michigan University, and his doctoral degree at the University of Michigan.

Thornton Announces Retirement from Cuyahoga Community College (OH)

Longtime Cuyahoga Community College (Tri-C) President Jerry Sue Thornton announced her retirement, effective June 30, 2013. Recently, Dr. Thornton was honored as one of the top 25 women in higher education. (See article in this issue.) Dr.

Dr. Jerry Sue Thornton

Thornton took the helm at Tri-C in 1992 and is Tri-C's third president since its founding in 1963. The daughter of a Kentucky farmer and coal miner, Dr. Thornton became a powerful force in local civic affairs, serving on many non-profit and corporate boards and forging relationships with other institutions. She also has been a prominent advocate of community colleges nationally.

Before becoming Tri-C president, Dr. Thornton served six years as president of Lakewood Community College, now known as Century College, in Minnesota, and, previously, she served as dean of academic affairs at Triton College near Chicago.

Dr. Thornton earned a bachelor's and a master's degree from Murray State University, Kentucky, and a Ph.D. from the University of Texas at Austin. She is also a graduate of Harvard's Institute for the Management of Lifelong Education. Dr. Thornton holds honorary doctorates from the College of St. Catherine (MN) and Youngstown State University, Cleveland State University, the University of Toledo and Baldwin Wallace College, all located in the state of Ohio.
